Kim Golding presents: Introduction to Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy, Parenting and Practice

Wednesday 23 May 2018 / 09.00 – 17.00 / Cardiff

All Nations Centre, Cardiff

We are delighted, and honoured, to welcome renowned clinical psychologist Kim Golding to deliver a one-day conference centred around Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy (DDP).

Learning outcomes

- Update your knowledge of relational interventions for children who have experienced developmental trauma
- Improve your understanding of the support available for parents of children with developmental trauma, and why such support is important
- Learn how best to recognise and manage the challenging behaviour of children who have experienced developmental trauma, and discover ways to help such children experience safety in school

Tickets
£52.50

About the day

DDP interventions build security for children who have experienced developmental trauma, need relational interventions to help them to increase their trust and security with parents and caregivers. Additionally, parents and carers of children with developmental traumas need support and interventions for themselves in order to protect them from blocked care and to help them to find ways to emotionally connect with their children. Teachers and educators need help to understand the impact of developmental trauma on children; to recognise this in their challenging behaviours and to discover ways to help the children experience safety in school.

The conference is relevant to all those working with young people, including teachers, educators, clinical practitioners, CAMHS workers, social workers, and those who have an interest in the mental health of young people.

The conference will explore PACE and Behaviour Support.

Biography

Kim Golding, D. Clin. Psy. AFBPsS, is a Clinical Psychologist living in Worcestershire. Kim has always been interested in parenting, and collaborating with parents to develop their parenting skills tailored to the particular needs of the children they are caring for. She was involved in the setting up and evaluation of the Integrated Service for Looked After and Adopted Children; providing support for foster, adoptive and residential parents, schools and the range of professionals around the children growing up in care or in adoptive families. Kim currently provides training, consultation and supervision to a range of individuals and teams.

Kim was trained and mentored by Dan Hughes in the use of Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy and Practice (DDP); both as a therapy and a framework for communicating with and helping families of children who have experienced early trauma from within their family. Kim currently sits on the board of the DDP institute and is involved in accrediting and training other professionals in this approach. She is also a director of the Community Interest Company: 'DDP Connects UK'
