CAMH – Call for systematic reviews and meta-analyses

Child and Adolescent Mental Health (CAMH) publishes high quality, peer-reviewed child and adolescent mental health services research of relevance to academics, clinicians and commissioners internationally. The journal's principal aim is to foster evidence-based clinical practice and clinically orientated research among clinicians and health services researchers working with children and adolescents, parents and their families in relation to or with a particular interest in mental health.

CAMH is published quarterly. The journal has been steadily gaining impact factor and international readership over the years.

We are inviting authors to submit systematic reviews and meta-analyses on all topics relating to child and adolescent mental health, and in particular, those that are clinically relevant and those relating to the effectiveness of treatment models. All systematic reviews and meta-analyses should conform to PRISMA reporting guidelines.
