About the day

Early influences on the child's development can have a significant impact on their later lives.

Delegates will gain an understanding of the importance of early life influences on child's development and the long-term impact on their mental health.

They will also have an opportunity to network with different professionals working with children and young people. It is a day of lectures and presentations with time for questions and answers.

Learning Outcomes

- Latest research on the intergenerational transmission of vulnerabilities in children
- Putting theory into practice
- Showcasing local services including a pilot project helping parents develop a secure attachment through mind-mindedness and reflective parenting.

Who should attend

Anyone working with CYP. Clinicians in mental and physical health in all settings (i.e. primary, secondary, tertiary care), education, social care and youth-based services.
